On 25 August 1952, over 400 officers of company commander rank or higher were called to 3 Field Army (FA) headquarters to be assigned as instructors to battalions and regiments of the 3 FA. These officers, who had served in Korea with the Chinese Communist Volunteer Army, were to give lectures and train the troops on the use of modern equipment and establish new combat tactics as part of a program to modernize and train 3 FA troops. Garrison forces and public security forces along the East China coast were also to participate in the training program.
